

THE INTEREST FOR FORESTALIA 2021 IS GROWING

From 30 October to 1st November 2021 Piacenza Expo will organize the next edition of FORESTALIA, a show dedicated to agroforestry activities. At the same time of Apimell, the international trade fair of beekeeping, apian products and equipment and Buon Vivere, the agricultural food market.

The appointment for people who work in the woods will renew and relaunch its Exhibition offer to meet the great turmoil of the sector. Today as never before, the forestry sector can strive for stimulus and financial supports to develop the wood-energy supply chain and the best practices for the environment protection.

With the extension of The Rural Development Program till 2022, a lot of notices of competition have been published, to strengthen the activities of afforestation, to control hydrologic instability on the mountain and to support the generational change of the agricultural sector. These financial resources are very important to help the Italian Forestry companies and their technological progress.

The Forestry culture is becoming again a topical subject within the cities, to develop urban forest projects, especially by using autochthonous species. These species have a considerable capacity to absorb pollution and high resilience to climate changes and urban environmental stress.

FORESTALIA 2021 will be focusing on the forest heritage enhancement, as environmental, social and economic resource and on the development of a sustainable forestry management. With its 3000sqm indoor and 10.000sqm outdoor, Forestalia is the right opportunity to meet the professional of the sector, to discover the technological developments and latest equipment.
